Former governor may file lawsuit against sugar industry

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

A former governor for the State of Florida says he may file a lawsuit against the sugar industry for "polluting the Glades and causing health problems in residents."

Governor Claude Kirk, who was governor during the Johnson and Nixon administration, 1967 through 1971, says he wants local citizens who have suffered health problems they believe might be caused by the production of sugarcane to join him in the lawsuit.

"There is an unusually high percentage of prostate and colon cancers in the black community out there," says Mr. Kirk. But when asked what those percentages are or where he got his information, he said he is in the process of gathering that data. "I just stumbled onto this. I have to get the public health people to get me those figures. The doctors out there are afraid to talk to me," he said.

In an add in this week's edition of The Sun, Mr. Kirk says he is evaluating the sugar industry's impact on wildlife, the environment and related health problems. "My purpose is to decide whether legal action is appropriate to end damages caused by current production methods."

Mr. Kirk said mercury pollution in fish and wildlife may be causing health problems in residents and the burning of sugarcane may cause breathing problems. Sugarcane fields are burned to remove trash and the outer leaves from the stalks before harvesting.

Mr. Kirk said his administration was the front runner in establishing environmental laws in the nation. His administration created the Florida Department of Environmental Protection.

"When Nixon became president, we convinced him to create the President's Council on the Environment which then caused the Congress to create the Environmental Protection Agency," he says.

EPA stepped in and worked to help Pittsburgh change practices used by U.S. Steel to clean up the air in that city, says Mr. Kirk, and the same can be done in this area.

"There's not a dime worth of difference between U.S. Sugar and U.S. Steel," said Mr. Kirk. "U.S. Steel answered their problem and U.S. Sugar can do the same thing. The only difference is, U.S. Steel didn't play the political games U.S. Sugar is playing."

Robert Bunker, spokesman for U.S. Sugar, said it is important there are people like Mr. Kirk who want to completely do away with farming in the Glades and are willing to do whatever it takes. U.S. Sugar responded to Mr. Kirk's ad with their own ad in this week's newspaper. In it, Mr. Bunker said

"It is a sad state of affairs when a former governor attempts to manipulate our emotions so that he can instigate frivolous litigation at the expense of ordinary people's livelihoods."

He encourages local residents to call and write to Mr. Kirk and let him know "how little we appreciate his high-handed threats and hypocritical 'concern'."

Barbara Miedema of Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative said, "We are a member of the community and we care about the community." She said many of the company's employees and their families live within the community, therefore, she said the company believes that their practices are sound. However, she said if there is anyone who has concerns about SCGC's practices, as far as health complications and problems are concerned, is encouraged to contact them at 996-5556.

Glades-area high schools graduate 338 seniors

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

Last week culminated a year of excitement by high school seniors in the public school system. Glades Central Community High School graduated 243 students Friday evening in the high school's gymnasium, and Pahokee High School awarded diplomas to 95 seniors. Saturday afternoon in the gymnasium.

The mood for both of the graduations was one of relief. The students shared memories with each other, hugged their classmates (some probably for the last time), and some even cried.

Both graduations served as a day of history-making in the Glades. With plans of closing "Old" Glades Central next school term and moving to "New" Glades Central, the class of 1995 Raiders was the last class to graduate from "Old" GCCH. Pahokee High School had a new principal this school term and Saturday afternoon's graduation was the first time she ever graduated high school seniors while being a high school principal.

The gym at Glades Central was packed to capacity as numerous people filled the gymnasium in hopes of seeing their graduate walk across the stage and receive their high school diploma. Pahokee's gym was also full as people from far away traveled to see the graduating class of 1995 take their final walk as high school seniors.

United States Congressman Alcee Hastings was the guest speaker at Glades Central's graduation and he urged the students to show great gratitude and appreciation to their parents and the faculty at the school. With their graduation theme being, "Everyday Is An Opportunity," Cong. Hastings said, "For you seniors, June 9 is a special day and everyday should be a day of learning."

Cong. Hastings also urged the seniors to learn a foreign language so that they may be able to "survive". He said foreigners come to the United States and learn the English language and there is no reason why speakers of the English language can't learn a foreign language also.

Glades Central's Valedictorian Sharika Brown led the graduates in a cheer that relaxed the seniors and the crowd as the graduates stood and stomped to a beat as only GCCH seniors are capable of. She told her classmates they have come a long way since they entered the hallways and corridors of what will now be known as "Old" GCCH. She said, "Our class has had to deal with a lot - the passing of relatives of classmates, and the defeat that our football team was handed when we were so close to the championship." She continued, "however, we stayed together and we have made it."

Pahokee High School's Valedictorian Mary Burroughs stood proudly in front of her classmates and challenged them to meet their goals. She said, "I challenge you to accept life and responsibility for the future."

Throughout each of the graduations, numerous awards and certificates were presented to the students. West Area Superintendent Eugenia Jones attended both graduations and presented Unsung Hero Awards to a student from each school. She presented the Unsung Hero Award to Johnny Rutledge of Glades Central and Nelson Lopez of Pahokee High.

Dr. Sandra Richman of the Palm Beach County School Board gave words of encouragement to the graduates by saying, "More is grown in the Glades besides sugarcane, for the finest people in the world are grown here."

Glades General downsizing staff to remain afloat

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

In an effort to maintain a high standard of care and to make the necessary choices that are required in today's health care environment, Glades General Hospital recently announced an employee staff reduction plan.

According to Glades General Hospital Director of Human Resources and Public Relations Curt Thompson, the layoffs are being initiated to help improve the financial viability of the hospital. He said, "We are basically trying to make ends meet." According to Mr. Thompson, more finances are going out of the hospital than what is coming in. Mr. Thompson said the layoffs will be hospital-wide and less than 40 people will be affected.

The hospital lost nearly $2.9 million in 1994, and $983,131 in 1993. Officials said the losses are affiliated with fewer patients being admitted to the hospital. Mr. Thompson also said the hospital provides care to patients who are unable to make payments, and the environment for managed care is not favorable for providers at this time.

The final reduction will affect approximately 12 percent of the hospital staff and will coincide with other operational changes designed to reduce operating costs and to improve financial viability.

In addition to the employee staff reduction, hospital employees will also begin reduced-work hour schedules, and managerial employees will receive a salary reduction. The hospital also announced they will continue to reduce staffing levels through attrition; consolidation of positions, job sharing, and early retirement as well.

Mr. Thompson said employees at the hospital were aware of the losses that the hospital is presently experiencing. He said they basically knew something would happen eventually. Among the staff members, Mr. Thompson said there is a general acceptance of the layoffs.

However, if in the future the hospital finds they need more staff to operate, and the budget begins to become favorable for the hospital, hospital personnel will go back to the listing of laid off employees and offer positions to them first.

Daniel Rose qualifies for National Collegiate Championships

Competing in his first ever Olympic-style weightlifting competition, Daniel Rose, 18, surprised everyone but his coach, with a resounding victory at the Lake Mary, "All Comers" meet on May 13. More impressive than the victory was the fact that his combined total weight lifted qualified him for the National Collegiate Championships to be held in October. Mr. Rose's victory at Lake Mary came in the 64 kilogram weight class for junior men (ages 18-20). He followed up on that victory by winning the "Best Lifter of the Competition" award in Fort Lauderdale on June 3, at the John Terpak Memorial Olympic Weightlifting Open.

Mr. Rose, a resident of Pahokee for the last eight years, is a graduate of Christian Day School where he lettered in football and basketball, and was named Christian Athlete of The Year in his senior year. He has been involved in weightlifting for the last four years, and credits his coach, Jerry Arline, for any success he is now enjoying. "Coach Arline has not only taught me the techniques, he has inspired me to work hard and have fun doing it. I have watched him discipline himself and train to stay a consistent world champion in Police Track and Field Competition, even after attaining the ripe old age of 53. I just hope I can be as fit when I'm that age," says Mr. Rose. Right now he is pretty fit. In the two Olympic lifts ("snatch" and "clean jerk") standing just 5'5" and weighing 130 pounds, Mr. Rose has lifted a combined 440 pounds!

His immediate goals are to compete in the prestigious Florida Sunshine State Games in Gainesville on July 8, and then qualifying for the Junior Men's National Team. That would earn him the privilege of training at the Olympic training facility in Colorado Springs, Colo., and begin competing with the team at the international level. "Ultimately, I hope to compete in the Olympic games, but that's really in God's hands," he said. "I want to use the abilities He has given me to honor Him. I am grateful that God has given me such a generous coach as Jerry Arline, and has provided the best training facility anywhere in Florida, right here in coach's house."

Perhaps the greatest social service that can be rendered by anybody to the country and to mankind is to bring up a family. But here again, because there is nothing to sell, there is a very general disposition to regard a married woman's work as no work at all, and to take it as a matter of course that she should not be paid for it.

National Hurricane Center has new home

By Mike Lyons

There is no such thing as a hurricane-proof building. Yet, one structure on the campus of Florida International University comes awfully close. It just might be the safest place in all of Florida.

It is the new home of the National Hurricane Center. After 20 years in a leased office building in Coral Gables, the Hurricane Center has moved to a $5 million dollar, state-of-the-art facility in western Dade County.

"It's as close as humanly possible to being hurricane proof," said Deputy Hurricane Center Director Jerry Jarrell. "I remember the Titantic story, so I don't say 'hurricane proof'."

It would take a heck of a hurricane, however, to make a dent in Mr. Jarrell's new home. Shielded by 10-inch concrete walls, the facility can withstand winds of 130 mph. It's equipped with three diesel engines and enough fuel to be self sufficient for one week. The new facility is so safe that the families of hurricane center employees will ride out any storm in the new building.

And don't think the facility is a result of Hurricane Andrew. Yes, the old hurricane center was damaged by Andrew in August 1992 but plans for a new facility had been in the works for a couple of years. "We recognized in 1990 that we need a new home," Mr. Jarrell said.

That's when former center director Dr. Robert Sheets went to work. Mr. Sheets wanted the new hurricane center on the campus of F.I.U. so that the National Weather Service staff could take part in research and instruction. Mr. Sheets also had a hand in designing the new building that is affectionately known as "Bob's bunker."

Ironically, Mr. Sheets will never get a chance to work in the new building. After eight years as director of the hurricane center Mr. Sheets retired last month. The new boss is Dr. Robert W. Burpee who recently was director of the Hurricane Research Division of the Atlantic Oceanographic Meteorological Laboratories. He'll take over July 1.

In addition to a new building, Dr. Burpee and the other tropical weather experts will have some new toys to play with this year. Two weather satellites launched in the last year are ready for this hurricane season. New super computers which can perform more calculations on new sophisticated programs will help better predict where storms are going.

"It's a revolution in technology," said Hurricane Specialist Lixion Avila. "With the computers and the satellites, we should be able to make more accurate and detailed watches and warnings."

One of those new computer programs may help forecasters predict changes in a storm's intensity, something they have been unable to do in the past. "This new program will tell us how strong or weak a storm will become," Mr. Avila said.

It's a pretty exciting year for the men and women who track tropical systems for a living. A new building, new equipment and a new boss. One of the best parts of the National Weather Service just got better.

Mike Lyons is the weather man for WPBF, Channel 25.

Novelist named featured speaker at Hurston Museum's Juneteenth gala

Tananarie Due

Tananarie Due will be the featured speaker at the Zora Neale Hurston Roof Garden Museum's benefit gala, Juneteenth, which will be held Saturday, June 24, at the Belle Glade Elks Club beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Ms. Due has chosen a non-traditional genre to write in, for an African-American author. Her book, released by Harper Collins Publishers of New York in May, is considered to be the first major African-American horror fiction novel. Her book, "The Between", begins in Belle Glade.

A native of Miami, Ms. Due, at 29 years old, is a features writer and columnist for the Miami Herald, and her weekly "Dating" column is offered to more than 350 publications by the Knight Ridder/Tribune News Service.

Although "The Between" is her first work of fiction, her book has already been optioned for a feature film by Longbow Production (the makers of a "League of Their Own", a success that few just-published writers can claim.

Ms. Due is the daughter of civil rights activists John Due and Patricia Stephens Due. Her mother spent her teenage years in Belle Glade, the daughter of former East Lake High School principal, the late Marion Hamilton.

Juneteenth, a celebration of freedom, provides the Hurston Museum, a Black History Museum with a literary focus, an opportunity to showcase new authors and their works. A donation of $30 is asked of banquet patrons. Copies of "The Between" will be available at the banquet, and Ms. Due will autograph all first-edition copies.

For additional information, or to reserve tickets, please call the Hurston Museum at 996-2161.

Shannon Tolbert, a 1995 graduate of Glades Central Community High School, was congratulated by Frank Ellison. Mr. Ellison is a 1992 graduate of Glades Central.

Church's 75th anniversary recognized

The Canal Point United Methodist Church's 75th Anniversary was recognized at the Florida Annual Conference in Lakeland last week. The church in Canal Point has remained strong and vital throughout its 75-year-history in the Glades.

The church was established in 1920, and although the structure was destroyed twice through the years by fire and weather, the faithful people of the church continued in their commitment to be the people of God, here in the heart of the Glades.

Bishop Hasbrouck Hughes commended the church family for their vital witness for Christ, and in recognition of their 75th anniversary, presented a certificate to the church's delegate to the conference, Dennis Wagner.

The group representing the church family in Canal Point received a thunderous applause from over 2,000 participants at the conference as Rev. Don McMillan.

Rainfall to affect upcoming hunting season

Record-setting water levels in south Florida could have a major impact on the 1995-96 hunting season. Officials with the Florida Game & Fresh Water Fish Commission say hunting in the Everglades and Big Cypress wildlife management areas might be severely reduced or eliminated altogether.

"The flooding from last fall and winter has seriously affected both areas," said Laura Richards, a wildlife biologist in the commission's Everglades Region. "Even though the water level has gone down, it's still normal, and it's still causing problems for wildlife."

For that reason, commission biologists might recommend restrictions on deer and hog hunting for this fall.

"We just want people to be aware of the situation when they make applications for quota hunts on wildlife management areas," said Vic Heller, assistant director for the Commission's Division of Wildlife. "For example, if you're filling out a quota application for the Big Cypress area, you should know that biologists are likely to recommend that hunting be limited or closed during general gun season."

Mrs. Heller said the ultimate authority to act on such a recommendation is exercised by the five-member Game & Fresh Water Fish Commission.

General gun season (which includes antlered deer and wild hog hunting) for the Big Cypress WMA runs from Nov. 11-Jan. 1. Quota hunts for the Big Cypress WMA include the Nov. 11-19, Nov. 20-26 and Dec. 21-Jan. 1 periods. Mr. Heller said a final decision on restrictions will come later this summer after wildlife surveys are conducted on the areas.

Surveys earlier this year indicated lower populations and a decrease in the requirement rate (the number of animals born and surviving in the population).

In the Everglades WMA, the recruitment rate for deer was estimated at 12.5 percent, the second lowest ever recorded. Also, an extremely low number of deer was seen during the survey. In the Big Cypress WMA, the most recent deer survey in the Stairsteps Unit, indicated a recruitment rate of 13.3 percent. In normal years, recruitment rates of 15-15 percent are expected.

"We're going to conduct additional surveys in June," Mrs. Richard said. "These surveys should provide the information we need to make the final recommendations regarding hunting season restrictions for the fall."

Local church youths receive scholarships to summer camp

Through generous efforts by members of the community, the Canal Point United Methodist Church Pastor Jackie McMillan said they are able to send 14 youths to camp this summer for a week-long session.

According to Rev. McMillan, the camp fee is $170 per child. She said the money was raised thanks to community support of the church's spaghetti dinner held Saturday, June 10.

Rev. McMillan said more money was raised than needed, therefore, all of the children will be able to attend the camp on full scholarships.

The camping program, United Methodist camp, will be held in Leesburg, and youths from Canal Point United Methodist Church have attended the camp the past three years on full scholarships.

Schoenfeld named to Dean's List

Tracy Lynn Schoenfeld of Belle Glade was recently among 241 Mars Hill College students to be named to the spring-term Dean's List at the Baptist-related school located in North Carolina.

To be named to this honor, a student must maintain a grade point ratio of 3.5 or better on a minimum of 12 semester hours of study and have not received any grade below "C" for one or both semesters. Mars Hill bases its grades on a four-point system with an "A" representing four points, and a "B" three points, a "C" two points, and a "D" one point.

Tracy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Schoenfeld.

Dr. Kenneth N. Shelton (also known as Bishop Omega Yeshua Linnad Shelton), Pastor and General Overseer of the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ of the Apostolic Faith, met with Pope John Paul II at the Vatican on Wednesday, May 17, 1995. While en route to Rome, Bishop Omega graciously accepted an Honorary Doctorate of Human Letters from the American College of Switzerland in Leyden, Rome was the culminating destination.

As always, opportunity to meet and converse was important. Bishop Omega discussed the gospel of grace, occasions for peace and the need to spread joy and love. This meeting took place so that the Apostolic Faith might gain recognition as a major international religion with a substantial following of believers spread amongst more than 72 churches. Private audience with Pope is not a commonplace happening, but an event of great significance in the Christian world of the 20th century.

Bishop Omega explained that some of our conversations points to the fact that we are Jesus only, we believe that we should be baptized in the name of Jesus rather than his titles, and that we have real faith as spoken by the Apostles. The Apostolic Faith ministry today continues to spread the gospel of grace with the heart which Jesus had for the Christians and in the spirit of love and concern are yielded.

We believe that salvation is a gift that cannot be earned by energy of the flesh.

Bishop Omega has shared this vision of international peace with like-minded world leaders, having an audience with President Nelson Mandela of South Africa on September 15, 1993, Israel's Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin on January 17, 1995, and King Hussein of Jordan on January 22, 1996.

The Church of the Lord Jesus Christ of the Apostolic Faith can be found in your vicinity. The Church is headquartered at 22nd and Bainbridge Streets in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. We invite you to God's house for spiritual edification.

The Top Commandments Of Frequent Travel

Tips for Today's "Road Warriors"

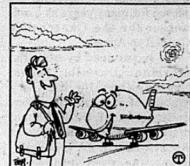

by Randy Petersen

(NAPS) — When the travel industry first began developing programs to reward frequent travelers, critics said they couldn't last. The ability to earn airline miles and hotel points might look good on paper, they said, but frequent travel programs will never influence America's travel patterns. Today, more than a decade later, airline miles and hotel points have become among the most sought-after currencies as travelers scramble to earn free vacations. And, with so many airline and hotel programs to choose from, today's traveler practically needs a tour guide just to sort through the dozens of possibilities.

As published in the "InsideFlyer" magazine, I've developed the following tips to help even novice travelers on the road to free travel rewards:

• Narrow your options. It's easy to become overwhelmed by the number of competing airline and hotel programs. First, list the major travel companies that serve the markets you need. Then, compare the programs. It makes sense to join smaller, regional programs if you travel within a given region exclusively.

• Fly right. Play the field with the airline programs and accumulate miles with several of your favorite carriers, assuming, of course that they made your "short list" of potential programs. I recommend joining several major airline programs. This year, the "InsideFlyer" selected United Airlines' Mileage Plus as the best airline program based on its generous reward structure and upgrade policy.

• Concentrate your hotel stays. Unlike the airline programs, hotel programs vary widely in their level of benefits. I recommend limiting your stays to the top three hotel programs. This year, our readers chose Hilton Honors® as the best hotel program. HHonors® advantages include Double Dipping — it is the largest hotel program to allow members to earn both airline miles and hotel points with each stay — and a new benefit called the "airline exchange" that allows members to exchange airline miles for hotel points and vice versa with selected airlines. This benefit is important because it allows travelers to concentrate their earnings, making it far easier to qualify for the rewards they want.

• Show an affinity for travel. Research your options with affinity credit cards. Such cards allow travelers to accumulate airline miles or hotel points virtually every time they use the card. This year, our readers voted the American Express Membership Miles program as the top affinity program, based on its overall scope and earnings potential.

• Be creative. Many airlines have increased the mileage required to earn a free flight. However, if you're creative, you can earn miles more easily than ever before. For example, several dining programs that allow travelers to literally eat their way to a free meal.

Also, to the traveler's advantage, businesses are recognizing the promotional value of mileage giveaways in record numbers. One major company recently offered consumers 1,000 frequent flyer miles for simply taking a test drive of its latest model. We expect this type of promotion to become even more popular in the future.

Don't let yourself get shortchanged when it comes to maximizing your membership in frequent travel programs. By keeping abreast of program developments and opportunities, virtually anyone can qualify to earn a complete vacation package, airline and hotel accommodations. If you would like more information or have questions concerning frequent travel programs, call "InsideFlyer" at 1-800-487-8993.

Randy Petersen is publisher of "InsideFlyer" magazine and an acknowledged expert on frequent travel.

An increasing number of people, it seems, are strong on reading weekly newspapers. In 30 years, weekly newspaper circulation totals more than doubled from about 25 million to about 55 million.

YESTERDAY NOW!

Energy Through The Ages

(NAPS) — Here's a quick look at the history of our use of energy.

Then: While no one is sure when the use of fire was first discovered, it made an enormous difference in prehistoric life, so much so that most early people considered fire sacred.

Now: Today, we have many ways to heat our homes and cook our food, but according to many scientists, one of the best is at its heart as basic and natural as those first fires: nuclear energy. Electricity produced at nuclear power plants is, however, a lot cleaner and more economical for the user and the environment, say the experts at Westinghouse. The dual goals of a clean environment and a strong economy, they add, can only be met if America increases its use of nuclear energy. You can express your opinion to the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Rosenwald Elementary honors fathers with Pre-Father's Day activity

There was a varietal invasion of the male persuasion on the campus of Rosenwald. Fathers, grandfathers, brothers, uncles and cousins came from far and near to take part in the Summertime Madness Readathon. The activity was a Pre-Father's Day activity in conjunction with Success For All Reading Program. A previous activity with the women was a huge success. Family support, being one of the program's focal points, meant it was only fitting that the male role models join their daughters, granddaughters, sisters, nieces and cousins in promoting reading.

The men were treated to a wonderful breakfast consisting of eggs, bacon, biscuits, grits, etc. What a good start they had for the activities that followed. Prizes were presented to the classes with the most visitors. The principal was also scheduled to teach a reading lesson to winning groups.

Researchers hoping wading birds remain vital part of Everglades

While the Florida Everglades has long been known for its beautiful landscapes and wildlife, University of Florida researchers are working to ensure that wading birds continue to play a role in the natural charm of the Everglades ecosystem.

Peter Frederick, assistant professor of wildlife ecology and conservation at UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, said breeding populations of wading birds have been declining dramatically in the last 40 years. With funding from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Mr. Frederick has been in South Florida researching the effects that contaminate, disease and water management may have on wading bird populations.

"We have seen wading bird populations decline by at least 90 percent over the last 40 years," he said. "Because of a rich record of historical wading bird responses to natural events in the Everglades, we can begin understanding the effects that something like mercury can have on these populations."

For three months Mr. Frederick has focused on the accumulation of mercury in wading birds and its possible role in their decline. Along with co-principal investigator Marilyn Spalding, assistant scientist in the department of pathology, Mr. Frederick is studying the most at-risk group for high mercury levels.

At top level carnivores, Great Egrets are at high risk in terms of mercury intake. Wading birds are at the top of the Everglades food chain, and they accumulate mercury by eating fish that have the metal concentrated in their tissues.

Wading birds eat a diet that consists almost entirely of fish, Ms. Spalding said, and this increases the concentrations and risks for mercury toxicosis in the birds.

"We are conducting both field research and some experimental dosing of the birds with mercury," Ms. Spalding said. "Most of the work done in the past concentrated on toxins and mortality level. We believe it is important to concentrate on sub-lethal effects and the birds' health and survival."

Mr. Frederick, Ms. Spalding and two graduate students are examining the effects of mercury on Great Egret chicks, particularly on their appetite and survival. Mercury is thought to hinder the survival and growth of the birds and may contribute to the decline of the population.

This summer they will monitor the chicks' survival through radio transmitters riveted on aluminum bands and placed on a chick's leg while it is still in the nest. When the chicks begin to hunt food for themselves, the transmitters will record their activity. If the transmitter changes its signal, then a chick has not moved for more than 12 hours and is assumed dead. It will be located and its tissues analyzed for any effects from mercury.

"It is important that we conduct these studies out in the field so the birds are under natural stresses found in the wild," Mr. Frederick said. "We are able to study the effects of mercury on the field so the birds are under natural stresses found in the wild," Mr. Frederick said. "The results of the tests will be available this fall."

said.

The water turnover and food intake of egret chicks is being monitored by way of radioisotopic tracers that are injected into each bird's leg. In addition, Mr. Frederick is comparing the effects of mercury on the birds' reproduction.

"Wading birds have declined 90 percent as breeding animals in the Everglades, and a large proportion of the birds out there are simply not breeding at all," Mr. Frederick said. "Mercury could play a big role in altering the ability of birds to court and come into reproductive condition."

For this research, Mr. Frederick has collected feathers and blood samples from breeding and non-breeding birds to be analyzed by the Department of Environmental Protection. The feathers, or breeding plumes, are excretory tissues for mercury in the birds and are shed after breeding occurs. Mr. Frederick said the feathers provide a good record of heavy metals accumulated in the body.

After collecting plumes which are shed at the nests, Mr. Frederick will compare levels of mercury in those feathers with others taken from birds that are not breeding, usually birds that have died as road kill or in rehabilitation centers. The results of the tests will be available this fall.

School of CHOICE Principal Antoine Russell recently spoke to the Belle Glade Rotarians. He said the primary goal at the School of CHOICE is to get the kids back to their regular schools.
